

No-one to No-thing

The pattern started getting ready to launch about two years ago.

The first simple tile gently tipped the world off its' axis just over a year ago.

The dominos have been burning their way through the illusion in my life ever since.

Their path did not lead anyone to anything.

They lead no-one to no-thing.

Christie and i are going together on a different path.

I cannot imagine better company for this adventure.

A purging of stuff has commenced.

The real cost of ownership is too high.

I am letting it all go.

That is all i pretend to know.
